

NEW LOOK!

HAPPY NEWS

KIDS

Sky snacks: New 'food constellations' discovered

A top British astronomer has served up some truly tasty news: he's spotted six brand-new snack-shaped constellations twinkling above the UK! Stargazers can now hunt for cosmic treats like the Sausage Roll, Chicken Nugget, Prawn Ring, Mini Pizza, Pig in Blanket and even Cheese on a Stick! Mark Thompson, who first noticed these celestial snacks, said they were visible in the night skies over the past week, and he hopes his fun new names will inspire more kids to look up and start stargazing.

Joke of the Week

Why don't suns ever go to college? They already have a million degrees!

So(lar) much sun!

Parts of Australia are getting so sunny that the government is starting to give people free solar electricity during the day! There's often more sunshine power than anyone can use, so instead of wasting it, families will soon get a few hours of totally free energy, even if they don't have solar panels. It's Australia's bright idea to share its super-strong sunlight and make clean energy fun, fair and free!

Australia

South Korea

A fur-miliar face!

On a tiny island in South Korea, a friendly dog named Maru became an unexpected internet star. When a Google street-view camera came to take pictures, Maru happily followed them everywhere, popping up in almost every shot. When the photos went online, people loved seeing Maru acting like the island's cheerful tour guide and shared them far and wide!

Special arrival coming soon

Denver Zoo in the USA just shared some exciting news - Winnie the tamandua (a type of adorable anteater) is pregnant for the first time in over ten years! Winnie and her mate, Santiago, even posed with cute ultrasound photos to announce the big surprise. Zookeepers discovered the baby during one of Winnie's checkups.

USA

The golden throne!

A real working toilet made from solid gold is about to be sold for a whopping £8million! The shiny loo, created by artist Maurizio Cattelan, is actually the second famous gold toilet - the first one was stolen from a palace in 2019 and was never found! Now its glittering successor is heading to New York, where it will be sold to the highest bidder.

USA

Think Happy

What's something that gives you energy or makes you feel bright inside?

